What Is Measured?

Percentage of Texas Community College students who completed the developmental English/reading and mathematics requirements within two years

Who Is Counted?

Students entering Texas Community Colleges for the first time in fall 2006

What It Tells Us

Some 28 percent of first-time Pell grant students in Texas Community Colleges who enrolled in developmental English/reading and mathematics courses during their first academic year completed the developmental English/reading requirements within two years.

Why It's Important

Most beginning community college students must complete at least one developmental education course in mathematics or English (reading, writing, or both), and many must complete multiple courses in one or more subjects. Completing the highest-level developmental course in a subject is the final precollege milestone and is often required to transfer to a four-year institution or to earn a certificate or associate degree.

ABOUT THE DATA

First-time students: include students with no prior postsecondary experience except for college credits earned during high school or in the summer before enrolling in the fall.

Directly from high school: defined as students age 18 or 19 in states without linked K-12 and postsecondary data systems.

Pell Grant recipient: a student who received a Pell Grant within the first year of entry at a given institution of higher education.

Race/ethnicity: Other includes Asian; American Indian or Alaska Native; and Native Hawaiian or Other Pacific Islander. Race categories exclude Hispanic/Latino origin unless specified.
